
Hussite Theology - courses

1. Preparation of dissertation I. – IV.

SIS LDOC24, 25, 26,27

Elaboration of the dissertation project is a key part of doctoral study, where the student demonstrates the ability of independent scientific work and critical reflection of the topic. The dissertation must include original and published results or results accepted for publication. This part guarantees the control of the dissertation preparation process and is stored in the individual study plan for each year of study. Every year the fulfillment of the obligation is confirmed by the credit awarded by the supervisor.

Part: Study requirements

This part allows students to improve and add to their specialised knowledge of Hussite theology. The following thematic areas and subjects serve this purpose:

1. HUSSITE THEOLOGY I

SIS LDOC22

Guarantor

prof. ThDr. Jan Blahoslav Lášek

doc. ThDr. Jiří Vogel, Th.D.

doc. ThDr. Kamila Veverková, Ph.D.

Annotation

The thematic area of Hussite Theology I. provides space for deeper study of the key and current problems of systematic Hussite theology and church history, through the study of scholarly and source literature and subsequent expert discussions with the examiner. As a rule, a lecture cycle is offered once a academic year. In an individual study plan, this obligation is imposed once per standard length of study and is usually planned to be completed by and including the third year of study. Fulfillment of the obligation is confirmed by an exam with the result passed by the examiner.

Part: Specialised activities

This part allows students to master skills in relation to research activities through other specialised activities.

The following serve this purpose:

1. Placement abroad

SIS LDOC28

An internship abroad provides students with the opportunity to gain international experience in their field. The student is obliged to complete an internship abroad for a minimum of three months. In justified cases, the Subject Area Board may dismiss the traineeship or decide to adequately fulfill this obligation in another form. (The reasonableness of the application is always considered taking into account the specific situation of the doctoral student, eg a student of combined studies, a student caring for a close person, a student bound by specific obligations towards the employer, a disabled student, etc.) one-month internship supplemented by active participation in 2 international seminars or 2 international conferences with publications (professional article, conference proceedings, etc.).

The student actively cooperates on the administrative assurance of the fulfillment of the obligation of the individual study plan - internship abroad with the dept. sciences HTF.

2. Additional Research Activities

SIS LDOC29

Assumption of involvement of Ph.D. student is only allowed to proceed to the second year of doctoral study at the request of the student to the ISR Board. The application for the change of the ISP contains a concrete proposal for teaching and the consent of the supervisor and the head of the relevant department. Ph.D. student can lead independent lessons in selected seminars and exercises only in direct connection with the study. They must not give lectures independently. Students in full-time form of study are determined by the content of activities that are designed as a preparation for further academic activities at the university. Their content and method of determination are determined by the head of the relevant department in cooperation with the supervisors.

The student actively cooperates on the administrative assurance of the fulfillment of the obligation of the individual study plan - internship abroad with the dept. sciences HTF.

Requirements for creative activity

Further scientific activity provides the student with space for gaining experience with various forms of scientific work. The student demonstrates his/her competence in scientific creative work.

In an individual study plan, this obligation is usually imposed continuously for the duration of the standard period of study - while the student is obliged to fulfill each of the following obligations at least once during the standard period of study:

- publishing critical reviews in a professional periodical;
- publication of a scientific study or article in a professional periodical or chapter in a professional monograph or monograph;
- submitting a grant project;
- active participation in an international conference and publication of a conference paper in a peer-reviewed conference proceedings.

Popularization lectures and educational activities are not considered a duty of further scientific activity.

Fulfillment of the obligation is confirmed by a credit awarded by the supervisor - habilitated (academic or scientific worker) after assessment of the student's written report on the ways of fulfilling the obligation.

The State Examination from the Hussite Theology

SIS LDOC30

After consultation with the supervisor and after approval by the Subject Area Board, the student prepares two thirty-minute lectures on different topics different from the dissertation topic. The lecture must be devoted to specific problems. The lecturer must characterize the state of their solution, the current state of research, present their own critical opinion and demonstrate their professional competence. The committee for the state doctoral examination chooses on the spot one of the prepared topics. In the following discussion, the student answers the questions raised and defends his / her position. The exam is oral.
